Pat Nixon 'Serious' After Stroke

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Doctors kept an overnight vigil on former first lady Pat Nixon, partially paralyzed on her left side from a stroke and in "serious but stable condition."

Mrs. Nixon was reported resting comfortably after visits with her two daughters Thursday night, but neurologist Dr. John Mosier said she is far from being out of danger.

"If the stroke doesn't get any worse, she's not going to die. If it gets worse, well, people do die from strokes," Mosier said at a news briefing called after the 64-year-old wife of former President Richard M. Nixon was admitted to Memorial Hospital Medical Center.

The stroke caused "moderate paralysis" of Mrs. Nixon's left leg, arm and left side of her face, which in turn caused a "slight slurring" of speech, Mosier said.

"I think she will walk," he said, but added, "She may not walk normally." Pressures in her life "certainly could have been a contributing factor" toward her illness, Mosier added.

Secret Service agents called an ambulance for Mrs. Nixon, and she was accompanied during the 30-mile trip from the former Western White House by her husband and younger daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower.

Nixon slipped out of the hospital only an hour after her arrival and apparently returned to San Clemente.

The couple's other daughter, Tricia Cox, flew in from New York and she and Mrs. Eisenhower visited with their mother until about 9:15 p.m. before joining their father at San Clemente. President Ford and his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan, called Nixon at the hospital.

"It could be serious," a White House spokesman quoted Nixon as telling the President.

"They are very hopeful," Reagan quoted the former president as saying after Nixon was notified that her condition had stabilized.

"She had a stroke of maybe 35 to 50 per cent completeness," Mosier said Thursday. "We don't know if it will expand. At this point we don't know how permanent this may be." He said she was expected to remain hospitalized for at least 10 days.

Mrs. Nixon suffered the stroke Wednesday while reading, Mosier said. "She felt that she probably had a little stroke. She went up and went to bed. She didn't tell the other members of her family." But next morning the family "could tell when they saw her," and a doctor was summoned, he said.

An ambulance was called with instructions that there be no sirens.

Mrs. Nixon was being given no medication, hospital spokesmen said.

Pollution Curbs Tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is ordering 45 states to revamp their antipollution programs to meet federal standards, even though clean air plans have reduced pollution levels by 5 per cent annually.

Russell Train, who heads the Environmental Protection Agency, said Thursday that stricter compliance in meeting anti-emission levels will be needed to ensure that clean air is maintained in the United States.

The EPA formally notified 45 governors that their state plans were "substantially inadequate" to attain or maintain clean air standards in at least one antipollution area. Alaska, Mississippi, Florida, Hawaii and Oklahoma were not affected by the EPA directive.

The EPA order seeks to strengthen compliance with clean air standards regarding sulfur dioxide, oxidants and carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen dioxide and sulfur dioxide.

To correct inadequacies in state clean-air plans, "numerous small (pollution) sources in urban centers may require (stricter) controls," including efforts to go beyond smoke stack controls, the EPA said.

The EPA said a major problem in western states is windblown pollutants, such as dust from construction sites, unpaved roads and tilling of farmland.

"This problem will likely take many years to resolve due to the difficulty in implementing effective controls, but the EPA is initiating programs aimed at identifying solutions over the long term," said Train.

He said the limited information available on the pollution level caused by carbon monoxide and photochemical oxidants "indicates that the standards are being violated far less frequently than five years ago, in some cases as much as 50 per cent less."

Train's order directs 31 states to take new steps to meet the 1970 Clean Air Act standards for particulate matter; 12 states to revise sulfur dioxide standards; 22 states to revise carbon monoxide standards; 29 states to set new or more stringent standards for photochemical oxidants and three states to revise their nitrogen oxide standards.

Most states must change at least two standards.

Under Train's order, state regulators must submit new anti-emission plans no later than July 1, 1977. Other necessary regulatory measures, such as transportation improvements, must be submitted by July 1, 1978.

Record Corn Crop May Cut Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are expected to harvest a record corn crop this year, a Bicentennial reaping of native American grain so large that it could help ease consumer grocery prices through 1977.

A senior Agriculture Department economist says that if the weather continues good, the additional grain will have a major impact on retail food prices. But an activist group, the Community Nutrition Institute, warned that prices would likely rise more than USDA predicts.

The department will announce its first corn production estimate of the season on July 12. Spurred to all-out production by rising demands for grain, farmers will harvest about 72.4 million acres of corn this year, 8 per cent more than in 1975 and the largest acreage in 27 years.

Interviews with officials and farmers in more than a dozen key states which produce 90 per cent of the crop point to a harvest significantly larger than last year's record 5.8 billion bushels.

The USDA has projected a harvest of up to 6.73 billion bushels, but those are bookkeeping figures based on probabilities. The July 12 estimate will be based on field surveys taken around July 1.

Last year's huge corn harvest has been an important reason why 1976 food prices have slowed down. Now, according to USDA, consumers will see food costs average 2 to 5 per cent higher this year, compared with an 8.5 per cent gain in 1975 and jumps of 14.5 per cent in each of the two previous years.

The reason is this: Corn is the biggest and most valuable farm crop in the United States. It is a rich in life-giving nutrients for animals which produce the beef, pork, lamb, eggs, chicken, turkey, milk and butter for family tables.

When farmers do not have enough corn at reasonable prices to profitably feed the animals, there is less food for American tables and grocery costs soar.

Don Paarlberg, director of economics in the USDA, said that even with another record corn harvest this fall, food prices probably will continue to rise because of rising costs for getting commodities from the farm to the consumer.

"If there is an increase in the retail price of food it is likely to come after the stuff leaves the farmer's gate," he said.

Corn also is in big demand for export to other countries, notably the Soviet Union, Japan and Western Europe, where, as in the United States, it helps produce livestock products for consumers.

During the 1975-76 corn marketing year which will end Sept. 30 when the new harvest is ready, about 1.65 billion bushels — nearly 30 per cent of last year's record harvest — will be exported. The Soviet Union, as the largest single foreign customer, has bought about 475 million bushels of the export total.

Angry U.N. Debate Over Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats predicted today that the Security Council debate on the Israeli rescue of hijacked hostages from Uganda will produce some of the angriest confrontations seen at the United Nations since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

The debate opens this afternoon, and observers expected it to be lengthy. Most of the 40 black and Arab African nations were reported planning to address the council. However, the debate was not expected to produce any concrete action against Israel, Uganda or terrorism.

African countries were readying a resolution strongly condemning Israel and demanding that it compensate Uganda for all damage done in the raid. U.S. officials said the United States would veto any resolution condemning Israel.

Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog planned to accuse Ugandan President Idi Amin of collaborating with the Palestinian and German hijackers. Israeli officials said he would also argue that saving the lives of the passengers and crew of the Air France jetliner took priority over respect for Ugandan sovereignty.

Governor Signs Jersey Tax Bill

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has signed into law personal income tax legislation that will provide funds for the reopening of New Jersey's public schools.

The bill signed Thursday ended a 10-year battle over the income tax in New Jersey. It creates a new system of school aid for the state and will permit the schools to reopen Monday, providing the state Supreme Court lifts its injunction closing them.

The tax would expire June 30, 1978, under companion legislation not yet signed by Byrne.

New Jersey joins 40 other states that levy a personal income tax. The new law, retroactive to July 1, taxes earnings up to $20,000 a year at 2 per cent and anything beyond that at 2.5 per cent.

Payroll deductions will begin Sept. 1. Byrne called the bill, passed narrowly in both houses of the legislature, the completion of "the toughest task approached by the legislature in this century."

"This does not represent a giant leap toward the ultimate in tax reform but it is a significant contribution and represents real tax reform and a more equitable system of public education," Byrne said.

The income tax will raise $775 million, including $375 million in school funds. After signing the bill, Byrne sent a letter to Chief Justice Richard J. Hughes asking the court to lift the injunction that closed the schools.

Carter Finds Veep Choice Difficult

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — After back-to-back meetings with Sens. Walter Mondale and John Glenn, Jimmy Carter says he is having a more difficult time choosing a vice presidential running mate than he expected.

Mondale, of Minnesota, flew to Carter's hometown in a private plane Thursday morning to meet with him as a vice presidential possibility. And Glenn, from Ohio, followed several hours later.

The former Georgia governor said initially he would interview at least five vice presidential possibilities. He later lengthened that list to six or seven. He talked with Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine on Monday.

Carter said Thursday he plans to meet with Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington in New York on Saturday, two days before the start of the Democratic National Convention. He also has said he probably will interview Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey. Although they now are considered dark horses, two other senators who are expected to be interviewed by Carter during the convention are Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

Standing with Glenn, the former astronaut, on the lawn of Carter's home, the man who almost certainly will be nominated for the presidency next week insisted that "I honestly have no preference at this point" for a vice presidential nominee.

"I'm not going to rush myself," Carter said. "I'm deliberately going to wait until quite late."

After the meetings, Carter gave his visitors a taste of small-town Georgia life, first taking Mondale on a quick tour of downtown Plains and later escorting Glenn to his peanut fields, where he pulled a peanut plant and delivered a lengthy lecture on how it grew.

Carter refused to compare for the benefit of reporters his recent senatorial visitors, saying, "They all are superb leaders. All three are highly regarded not only by their colleagues... but by leaders in other parts of this country."

He added that he felt compatible with all three, both personally and on the issues.

Carter was asked whether Mondale, who decided last year not to run for president because he felt the stress of campaigning was too rigorous, could undergo the pressures of running for the vice presidency.

"Yes, we went into that, and there's no doubt in my mind that he would be willing," Carter replied.

Mondale strongly indicated he would accept the vice presidential nomination, answering "yes" to a question about whether he would be willing to give up his career in the Senate.

Glenn, however, refused to say whether he would accept the bid.

"The bid has not been offered, and I think it would be presumptuous of me to say yes or no to that," said Glenn, who was elected to the Senate in 1974.

Reagan Has Setback In Delegate Race

CHICAGO (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for potentially greener pastures in Colorado today after suffering his worst setback in several weeks in his campaign for the Republican nomination for president.

President Ford gained 24 delegates Thursday and Reagan picked up three in delegate elections in North Dakota and commitments from previously uncommitted delegates in six other states and territories.

That gave Ford 1,028 of the 1,130 delegates needed for the Republican nomination. Reagan, who had been steadily gaining in recent weeks, trails with 979 in The Associated Press' survey of GOP delegates.

And Reagan, while still predicting a first-ballot victory next month in Kansas City, devoted a significant portion of his day Thursday to trying to head off second-ballot slippage if the convention gets to that point.

He held several private meetings with about a dozen Indiana delegates — who are legally bound to him only on the first ballot — to solidify their support.

The former California governor planned to meet today with state convention delegates in Colorado. The state meeting was scheduled to elect 25 national convention delegates today and Saturday.

Jim Lake, Reagan's press secretary, said he hoped to win at least 19 of those delegates, which would balance some of Thursday's losses.

Reagan, who spent most of Thursday courting delegates from Illinois and Missouri, as well as those from Indiana, in a marathon series of private meetings at a Chicago hotel, did not comment on the North Dakota loss.

A number of the delegates pledging themselves to Ford Thursday had been expected by both campaigns to go that way. But North Dakota, where Reagan campaigned in person, was a setback, although Lake claimed the opposite.

Reagan had said he hoped for a "rough split," and various aides had predicted winning six to nine of the North Dakota delegates. In voting Thursday, 18 legally uncommitted delegates were elected — 10 who declared for Ford, three for Reagan and five uncommitted.

After Colorado picks its delegates, there will be 55 still to be named, and Ford is the favorite to gain more ground.

ways of dealing with the increasing pervasive and pernicious practice of international terrorism." The statement also noted that he was a pioneer in the antiterrorism movement, having asked the United Nations to take action against international terrorism after the Palestinian massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

Herzog told reporters he met with Waldheim and accused him of prejudging the issue by his earlier statement. He said Waldheim replied that he had not intended his remarks that way.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose a bit in early trading today, with investors generally encouraged by lower interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was ahead a fraction and rising New York Stock Exchange issues held a 3-2 lead on those declining.

At one point, the NYSE ticker tape was three minutes late in recording trades.

The government reported at the start of trading that the wholesale price index rose fourtenths of a percent in June. The increase was just above the three-tenths of a percent jump in May, but considerably below the April rise of eighttenths of a percent.

Also affecting the mood on Wall Street was the decline in the nation's basic money supply, which was reported late Thursday. With some interest rates falling, there were indications that the Federal Reserve had eased its credit controls slightly.

Opening prices today included U.S. Steel, up 1/4 to 53; General Electric, up 1/8 to 57 3/4; and Bethlehem Steel, off 1/8 to 43 1/2.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose .82 to 991.88, with advancing NYSE issues holding a 4-3 margin on those declining.

Veterans Questions Answered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week the Circleville Herald, will publish a series of questions and answers of interest to veterans. These questions and answers are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information on any question presented in this column, or having any question concerning his Veteran Administration Benefits should contact the Veterans Service Officer at 219 South Court Street.

(Q.) I plan to travel and will not have a mailing address to receive my compensation check. What can I do about this?

(A.) VA will send your check to your bank for deposit if you submit a VA change of address form or a letter with your signature. You should also obtain two power of attorney forms from VA, one to give your bank as evidence of it's right to receive and deposit the check to your account, and the other to be retained by you.

(Q.) A home that my wife and I purchased under the G.I. Bill has been costing us more than anticipated in repairs and heavy maintenance. This house was quite old when we bought it, but isn't the VA required to set minimum standards on a home's condition before authorizing GI Financing?

(A.) Not a home which has been built more than one year before purchase through GI Bill financing. A house as old as the one you bought would therefore be exempt from this requirement.

(Q.) I'm eligible for a GI loan, and wonder if the Veterans Administration will guarantee a loan for both a mobile home and land to place it on?

(A.) Yes. The maximum guarantee for mobile homes is $10,000.00. But if the loan indicates site acquisition, it can be increased to $17,500.00.

(Q.) I wear braces on both legs as a result of service connected disability suffered in Vietnam. Am I eligible for an annual clothing allowance from the VA?

(A.) Probably yes, but you must apply to your VA regional office for it. These allowances (under PL 92-328) are authorized for service disabled veterans whose prosthetic or orthopedic devices tend to wear out or tear their clothing.

(Q.) Are all types of veterans benefits non-taxable?

(A.) Yes, with the exception of interest earned on GI insurance left on deposit.

Neglected Protection

If medical science is successful in totally eradicating a major disease, would the disease re-emerge at some future date because of neglect? This question is not merely academic. The test could be on now.

Since a polio vaccine was developed by Dr. Jonas Salk in 1953, this once dreaded disease has become almost extinct in the United States. The only reason it has is because of the widespread use of the vaccine.

For some time doctors at the National Health Center in Atlanta have expressed concern that the polio record may not last because parents are skipping immunization of their children in many instances. It is not only low income families which are overlooking the protection. The American Academy of Pediatrics reports that many middle income parents are neglecting to have their children immunized.

Perhaps it is because after two decades of rapidly disappearing incidences of polio and because many of today's parents have no firsthand recollection of the horrors of the disease, the matter of protection has lost its urgency. It would be a tragic mistake to permit that attitude to prevail.

An estimate from the National Health Center is that five million American children lack immunization against polio and measles. That is a neglect defying any rational explanation.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, July 9th, the 191st day of 1976. There are 175 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in History: On this date in 1776, Gen. George Washington summoned his troops in New York and had the Declaration of Independence read to them.

On this date:

In 1816, Argentina declared independence from Spain.

In 1850, President Zachary Taylor died at the White House after serving only one year and four months of his term.

In 1940, during World War II, the Duke of Windsor was appointed governor of the Bahamas.

Ten years ago: The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, meeting in Los Angeles, rejected the "black power" concept of racial separatism.

Five years ago: The last U. S. base guarding the demilitarized zone in Vietnam was turned over to South Vietnamese troops.

One year ago: President Ford accepted a Congressional proposal for a partial lifting of the embargo on arms delivery to Turkey.

Today's birthday: King Hassan of Morocco is 47 years old.

Thought for today: The ultimate solution of the race problem lies in the willingness of men to obey the unenforceable — the late Rev. Martin Luther King.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago, Nassau Hall in Princeton, N.J., was brightly illuminated. There was a triple volley of musketry — in a celebration of the recently-proclaimed Independence.

Growing Up

By JIM BISHOP

He had the right setting and he knew it. The old man played the scene like John Barrymore. It was his 84th birthday. The cheeks were lean and tan. The sky-blue eyes sparkled. He wore a navy blue suit and a pale tie. My old man was surrounded by great-grandchildren.

The big ones hugged him. The tiny ones crawled and drooled on his collar. Big John was the star, the producer. Without him, there would have been none of these. He had two highballs and he began to speak as though he was Moses.

"There is a time for children in life," he intoned, "and there is a time when they can make you very nervous. I am in the jittery stage but I ask you young parents not to take them away from me."

One tiny girl seemed to be fascinated with his breath or perhaps his teeth, which seemed to remain clenched even when he was laughing. "I leave you one piece of advice," he said, as though he might take wing and depart in the next moment. "Don't ever lay a hand on your children."

"It scars them forever. I never laid a finger on mine."

My brother John began to stiffen. "You never beat the hell out of Jim and me?" Big John adorned his face with his foxy smile. "Not once," he said. "Are you calling me a liar?"

Well, yes. My old man shaved with a straight razor. The leather strop hung in the bathroom. When either of us was bad — which was frequently — he invited us into the john as his guest. There is very little running room in the average bathroom.

He held us by the back of the collar and wrapped that leather strop around the calves of our legs. He never hit higher, but he made big sweeping arcs that left raised welts which looked like hot tongues.

Momma, to the contrary, was a slapper. She would accuse us of playing around bonfires, or not doing our homework, and would haul off and belt us on the face. She had a good working hand.

While my father was playing his charade of being the indulgent great-grandfather, the thought occurred to me that my parents seldom praised us, even when we were doing well.

Discipline was part of daily life. We washed the dishes, did the dusting on Saturday, ran to the markets, brought the correct change home, and never heard a thank you.

When I began to write professionally, my parents switched to a competitive newspaper. "There was never a writer in either side of the family," my mother said. "Why don't you be a good boy and study law?"

The ultimate pejorative from my father was sarcasm: "What the hell do you write — poetry?" Both of them read Collier's magazine until the week I became associate editor. Silently, they switched to the Saturday Evening Post. The night I finished a book called "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," I visited them to play pinocle. Momma was almost blind. "Son," she said solemnly, "if this book doesn't sell do you think you'll go out and look for a job?"

And yet, all the way, I knew that they were in my corner. They loved me. They hoped I would make it big. It is an ironic truth that the Irish can relate to a pick and shovel, but they fear that writing is a shade effeminate.

And yet, 26 years later, I won both of them at the same time. They were fearfully religious. I had written a book called "The Day Christ Died." The dedication page read:

To
Jenny Tier Bishop
Who Taught Us to Love Him

She was blind. Momma couldn't read it. Every night, my old man had to mouth 10 pages aloud to her. When it was finished, he held his hand out. "Strange," he said softly, "But I think you've written a masterpiece."

You can't take his word. He swore he never laid a glove on us . . .

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A Wharton School professor has devised a financial plan that would enable elderly homeowners to obtain a regular income from the equity in their homes while being guaranteed lifelong occupancy.

If implemented, the plan has the potential for greatly relieving the financial problems of elderly persons while simultaneously assuring them of independence and security in familiar surroundings.

Jack Guttentag, who holds the chair in banking at Wharton, the business and finance school of the University of Pennsylvania, has put his plan in the public domain, for possible promotion by insurers, government and savings institutions.

So far, he said, one large bank has seriously considered the plan, and many individuals have expressed interest, but it is not yet being marketed, even though he believes it can be offered with actuarial assurance equal to life insurance policies.

Guttentag's ideas, contained in "The Bulletin" of the New York University Graduate School of Business Administration, include two new financial instruments, a split equity plan and a nonrepayable loan plan.

In the split equity concept, the equity of a property is divided in two components, a lifetime interest or right of occupancy, and the residual equity, which is the right to dispose of the property after the occupant's death.

To implement, the elderly occupant sells the residual equity, but instead of obtaining a lump sum payment from the buyer, he or she receives a lifetime annuity or guaranteed income.

Upon the death of the occupant, the buyer ceases further payments and takes possession, sometimes obtaining a more substantial property for the money than would have been possible in a conventional transaction.

The possibility exists, of course, that the elderly owner or owners will enjoy a life span greater than those listed in the actuarial tables, in which the buyer would have to pay a larger sum.

Large institutions, however, can benefit from the laws of large numbers, which generally dictate that extremes average out.

The nonrepayable loan, the other instrument in the professor's concept, is simply a loan secured by a mortgage repayable only upon the death of the borrower or on the prior sale of the property.

Guttentag believes the time is ripe for the development of these instruments in the United States.

"With the proportion of elderly in the population steadily rising and concern for wealth bestowals through estates declining, the potential market is increasing rapidly," he said.

There is also a strong social interest in the development of the instruments, he believes, because the aged comprise a large part of the poverty problem. The median income for households over 65 is less than half that for all households.

Despite the income problems of many elderly, home ownership is higher than for the population in general.

Hospital Workers On Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of one hospital pushed a mop and the vice president of another stacked trays after 37,000 nonmedical employees struck 33 private hospitals in the New York metropolitan area.

The walkout Wednesday morning followed a demand by nurse's aides, technicians and housekeeping staff for a cost-of-living increase and the hospitals' refusal to grant it. Hospital officials say there is no money to raise salaries because of a freeze last April on Medicaid and Blue Cross reimbursements.

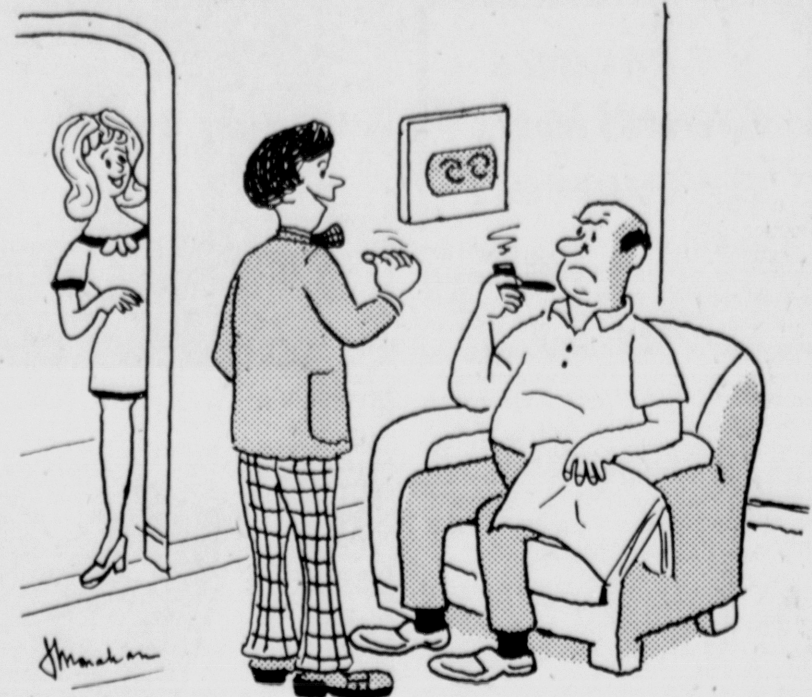

With the strike on, elective surgery was curtailed, outpatient clinics were closed and ambulance service became irregular. A few incidents of vandalism were reported, and unruly pickets outside one hospital blocked traffic.

City health officials said the walkout directly affected about 20,000 patients.

The struck nonprofit private hospitals continued to function, and the city declared a health emergency, assuring a flow of supplies across picket lines and clearing the way for garbage removal.

"This strike should never have occurred," said Leon Davis, president of District 1199 of the National Union of Hospitals and Health Care Employees. "We have been and are still willing to settle this thing in a civilized and peaceful manner, through binding arbitration if necessary."

But William J. Abelow, executive director of the League of Voluntary Hospitals, rejected the call for arbitration, saying the only solution is a contract that incurs no additional costs.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is it safe for children to use contact lenses?

Mrs. G. A., R.I.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Eye specialists are using contact lenses for children who have severe types of short-sightedness, astigmatism and for some eye birth defects.

Very young children are remarkably reliable, even at the age of five, in inserting or removing contact lenses without doing damage to their eyes.

Can an infant who is known to be allergic to cow's milk grow normally with milk substitutes?

Mrs. R. R., Ore.

Dear Mrs. R.:

Milk, of course, is considered to be the perfect food. It has all of the vitamins and minerals for normal growth.

But so frequently is there an allergy to milk that nutritionists have sought and found many excellent substitutes that fulfill all the infant's requirements for healthy growth.

Goat's milk and synthetic soy bean milks and additives contain excellent nutritives.

It is not unusual for a milk allergy to disappear when the child is two or three years old.

Even after a good night's sleep I suddenly become drowsy and can barely keep my eyes open at work. I don't take any drugs and don't understand why this happens.

Miss S. V. L., Va.

Dear Miss L.:

A temporary feeling of drowsiness in the absence of any drugs may be the result of a poorly ventilated room, excess humidity, or a room that is too warm.

Many people have a lethargic feeling after lunch, especially if they have eaten too much.

Alcohol, wine or beer may also add to the drowsiness.

Low blood sugar may be a factor, too.

Occupations where there are fumes and pollutants in the air can produce drowsiness.

A condition known as "narcolepsy" occurs in adolescents and young adults. This occurs more often in men than in women and is associated with an uncontrollable desire to sleep, even after a good night's rest.

Special studies of your sleep patterns may be necessary to track down the exact cause of your overwhelming sleepiness.

Circus Atmosphere For Demo Convention

NEW YORK (AP) — The Democrats are doing their damndest not to make a circus out of their convention next week, but the smell of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey lingers on.

Literally.

Their nominee will await his introduction as "the next President of the United States," in a concrete block locker room used normally by sweaty basketball players.

And the delegates themselves will be sitting on an ice rink.

These circumstances are dictated by the Democrats' choice of New York as their convention city. New York, Big Apple though it is, lacks the convention centers of a San Francisco, Miami Beach or Chicago. No Cow Palace here.

Instead there is Madison Square Garden, a nice compact little place that seats a shade more than 20,000 people at best, isn't on Madison Square, and surely is no garden.

Turning the hall into an arena for a political convention was the job of a firm headed by Raymond R. Hertler, who says he's voted Democratic sometimes.

With $1.4 million to spend, Hertler and his staff designed the convention hall down to the last camera stand and then coordinated the efforts of 80 to 90 firms that had something to do with building the thing.

"We anticipated a real rat race," he said. "But no, it was real calm. No major setbacks. No major labor problems. We worried about those big unknowns. But we were able to accomplish what you see here without substantial overtime."

By then, the place looked about 90 per cent ready. The podium lacked only the convention emblem, a thorough vacuuming, and the mums that will grace it when the delegates begin filing in for the 8 p.m. EDT opening Monday.

The transformation began June 1, a day after the circus left the garden. Out came 2,000 fixed seats on one side. In went benches for reporters covering the convention.

The huge exhibition space at the back of the hall, where the circus lions, tigers and horses had been quartered became office and equipment space for the television networks and other news organizations.

The unmistakable scent remained.

Chillicothe Civic Group To Present 'Bus Stop'

The Majestic Theater in Chillicothe will be host this weekend to a production of William Inge's romantic comedy "Bus Stop." The Chillicothe Civic Theater is producing the three-act play.

Once the city's Masonic Opera House, the Majestic had its stage partially restored in 1972 to house a production of Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story," produced by the same little theatre group. Prior to that date, the stage had last been used for live performances in 1939.

Because of the wide success of the musical in Chillicothe, more productions were staged at the ornate downtown theatre. Subsequent productions at the old playhouse have met with the strong approval of area theatergoers, many of whom have expressed their appreciation for the rejuvenated appearance of one of the city's chief landmarks, as well as for the advent of live, professional-quality theater in Southern Ohio.

Harley Bennett is owner and operator of the Majestic. The theater, located at 45 E. Second St. offers current films when not in use by the little theater group.

The balconied, Italianate Majestic is one of the few theaters in the country to still utilize a hemp fly gallery. Hemp ropes as a theater's fly system were replaced in most theaters after the turn of the century, a time when many theaters failed to survive the wrecking ball of new cinematic popularity.

"Bus Stop" occurs in a store-front Kansas restaurant during a March snowstorm in 1955. Four bus passengers, a bus driver, a local sheriff and the restaurant's two proprietesses find themselves snowbound overnight in the small makeshift bus stop. As late evening and early morning ensue, the eight waylaid people comically expose the pains of their personal lives, enjoying the warm camaraderie in the well-lit place. Dawn comes and the snow-laden highway is cleared. The eight people part, their lives altered.

The Chillicothe production is to be interlaced with music of the period.

Kenneth Breidenbaugh, a 1975 graduate of the Ohio University School of Theater, is directing the production.

Rex Hagerling, also a graduate of the OU School of Theater, is designer. All performers are from the Chillicothe area, some with professional experience.

Curtain rises at the Majestic Theater July 9, 10, 11 and 12 at 8:15 p.m. nightly. Rudimentary stage preparations for the production are nearly complete at the historic opera house.

Tickets are available by writing the Chillicothe Civic Theater, P.O. Box 312, Chillicothe, Ohio 45601, or by being purchased prior to an evening's performance at the theater.

Huge Reserves Of Coal Not Utilized

By JOHN BRONSON
Associated Press Writer

Coal was supposed to be America's answer to the energy crisis. But three years after the Arab oil embargo, little has been done to take advantage of the nation's most abundant fuel.

An estimated 18.6 per cent of the U.S. energy needs will be met by coal this year. That's only a 1 per cent increase since the embargo.

With those statistics in mind, many experts predict that the drive to wean the nation from foreign oil will flop unless the government forges a clear energy policy that encourages more use of coal.

"Our political leadership has done absolutely nothing," said Carl Bagge, president of the National Coal Association. "There's been rhetoric and energy scenarios, and we have established a vast new bureaucracy of incompetents to worry about the problem."

"But we are in worse shape today than before the oil cutoff."

The figures bear him out. In March, the United States imported more oil than it produced for the first time in its history. The American Petroleum Institute says the nation now imports 42 per cent of its oil. Before the embargo, it was 32 per cent.

The United States has an estimated coal reserve that could last 300 years. For that reason, coal is looked on as the best way to avoid the fluctuations of the world oil market by substituting it for oil and natural gas wherever possible.

Besides its traditional use as a fuel for making electricity, coal can also be converted into synthetic natural gas and gasoline.

The main area for expansion right now is in the conventional uses of coal. And coal is cheaper to burn than oil. The contract price per BTU — British Thermal Unit, a standard energy measurement — for oil in January was about $1.96 versus 78 cents for the same amount of energy from coal, the Federal Power Commission says.

So why aren't we using more coal? We planned to. At the height of the embargo, when about 590 million tons of coal was being mined, then President Richard M. Nixon called for a tripling of production by 1985.

But forecasters no longer dream of reaching that goal. The latest report by the Federal Energy Administration calls for output to top one billion tons by 1985. While recent production has increased — 640 million tons was mined in 1975 and this year's estimate is 664 million tons — some experts still see the goal as too high.

"If we exerted a superhuman effort and if we removed all the roadblocks and obstacles to developing all the new coal mines which we need, we would probably still fall short of this forecast," said Gerald Gambs, vice president of the engineering firm of Ford, Bacon & Davis.

"Since I see no hope that anyone in Washington either understands the problem or in fact seems to care, I believe it will be impossible," he added.

What rankles the industry the most is what it sees as the lack of direction at the federal level. At the same time that ambitious production goals are set, coal producers say obstacles are also placed in their path. The worst, they say, involve the environment.

Amendments to the Clean Air Act that took effect last year set stiff limits for the emission of sulfur dioxide. The act has, in effect, outlawed the burning of virtually all coal mined east of the Mississippi River.

"So far the standards have not been strictly enforced and variances have been granted," said Ralph Bailey, chairman of second-ranked Consolidation Coal Co.

President Ford agrees with the energy industry and has asked Congress to ease the law so that more high-sulfur coal can be burned. But the Senate has responded with a bill that will actually tighten the restrictions.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency insists that the technology exists to remove sulfur from coal when it is burned. The devices are called scrubbers and they literally wash out sulfur dioxide from stack gases at electric generating plants.

Many utilities say the scrubbers are unreliable, and others are hesitant to install them because they don't know if further changes in the law will make the equipment obsolete.

"We don't know from one day to the next, if we'll be able to burn the coal," said Henry Brown, of the Keystone Bituminous Coal Association.

Scrubbers are also expensive. For instance, one-third of the $1.3 billion price tag for the Bruce Mansfield power station at Shippingport, Pa., went for pollution controls, including scrubbers.

Tackling that problem has created another. Once the plant is at full capacity, nearly three million tons of a toothpaste-like sludge will ooze out of the scrubber each year. The utilities involved at Bruce Mansfield have to dump the waste behind the largest earthen dam in the eastern United States.

The American Electric Power system — AEP — one of the nation's largest utility combines, refuses to use scrubbers. Instead, it has built smokestacks that sometimes tower more than 1,000 feet over its plants to disperse sulfur emissions high into the air.

The company also mixes low-sulfur coal with its regular supplies in order to comply. The need to do so at the Gallipolis, Ohio, plant is a graphic example of the predicaments some utilities face.

The General James Gavin plant lies in the heart of the Ohio-West Virginia coal region. Since that coal contains too much sulfur to be burned by itself, AEP ships in low-sulfur coal from the West.

Thus, there is the spectacle of barges hauling coal from Wyoming and Utah up the Ohio River passing barges loaded with local coal headed downstream.

Western coal, most of which is low in sulfur, would make the use of scrubbers unnecessary in many cases. The area between Montana and Arizona has nearly half of the nation's known coal reserves.

Since most of that coal lies just below the surface and in seams up to 100 feet thick, the easiest and cheapest way to recover it is through strip mining.

But memories of stripmined land back East and fear of unchecked development in the West has led to a number of environmental actions that have stymied production.

One prominent casualty has been the gigantic Kaiparowits power plant project in Utah, abandoned in April because backers didn't want to fight regulatory delays and environmental lawsuits.

Their opponents, eager to halt what they see as the rape of the scenic West, hailed the decision as a victory. "We don't want the Mountain States to become the boiler room of the nation," said one Montana official.

President Ford has vetoed two attempts to establish national strip mine laws, but it appears Congress will bring the measure up again. Coal operators oppose the move, arguing that state regulations are enough.

"The people who are talking about regulating strip mining on the federal level are talking about no mining at all. They simply want to prohibit it," said Howard Frey, executive vice president for Westmoreland Coal Co.

Environmental hurdles are not the only ones the coal industry faces. Productivity has nosedived in the past six years from a peak of 19.90 tons per man-day in 1969 to 15.15 tons last year.

Part of the drop is due to tough federal safety regulations that took effect in 1970, but high absenteeism and wildcat strikes by miners have also taken their toll.

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller succeeded in negotiating a generous contract for miners in 1974 — they average $50 a day not counting overtime — but he has had trouble controlling the membership.

The union's International Executive Board recently suspended two West Virginia miners who led a series of wildcat strikes, and operators hope that relatively rare move is an indication that the UMW will exert firmer control in the future.

Any new growth by the coal industry will also require huge amounts of capital, estimated as high as $25 billion.

Says Consol's Bailey: "All of the growth will have to come from new mines, produced by equipment that doesn't exist today, operated by miners who have not yet been hired or trained and transported in rail cars that haven't been built running over rail lines ... too dilapidated to be safe or efficient."

Clear Skies Covering Large Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were clear skies over a large portion of the nation early today with unseasonably warm temperatures.

The usual summer showers and thunderstorms lingered along the Gulf of Mexico from Central Texas through Florida. Another area of showers and storms extended from the Ohio Valley through New England with a few more scattered along the upper Great Lakes into the Northern Plains.

The strongest thunderstorms were scattered along the Gulf of Mexico. Generally, the intensity of the storms diminished slowly after sunset.

Temperature extremes over the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 48 in Sault Ste Marie, Mich., to 100 degrees at Needles, Calif.

The national weather forecast for today: Scattered showers and thundershowers were forecast for Central Texas the Gulf Coast and into Florida. Scattered thunderstorms were likely through portions of Eastern Minnesota and possible in Northern Arizona. Rainshowers were also expected from Washington into Northern Oregon. It was to be hot from the Central Rockies into the Central Plains, as well as in western Iowa, eastern South Dakota and southern Minnesota. Showery conditions in south central Texas kept temperatures down. The rest of the nation had near seasonably warm readings with clear to partly cloudy skies.

In three days as much solar energy falls on earth as would be produced if all the planet's coal, oil and wood were burned at once; yet only one two-billionth of the sun's energy reaches earth.

Clergy Deployed For Convention

NEW YORK (AP) — A brigade of clergymen and lawyers is being deployed at the scene of the Democratic National Convention to monitor street demonstrations and try to stave off clashes with police.

"We hope to provide a cooling effect on both sides," says Irv Joyner, a specialist on criminal justice of the United Church of Christ and in charge of an ecumenical team organized for the job.

Starting Saturday and continuing around-the-clock until next Thursday midnight, the clergy and legal inspectors will be on hand to advise demonstrators both on rights and restrictions and to record activities.

Their gear will include cameras, tape-recorders and note pads.

Joyner said his group wants to "forestall the type of abuses" that have occurred at past conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Already the monitoring organization has received advance word from a score of groups ranging from student and women to "gays" and Vietnam veterans, planning for demonstrations through the week, beginning this weekend.

Agreement has been worked out with police for monitors to be stationed with police officers overseeing each of the "corridors" mapped out for surveillance around Madison Square Garden.

"We'll be privy to any reports coming in," Joyner. "We'll be physically present at all demonstrations and rallies."

The volunteer operation was set up jointly by the United Church Commission for Racial Justice, the National Conference of Black Lawyers and the American Civil Liberties Union, with the cooperation of numerous religious bodies.

The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Cobb, head of the church commission, says the monitors will "record and photograph any incidents between demonstrators and police. We hope the presence of the teams will encourage restraint."

He says prior upheavals have had a "chilling effect on demonstrators organizing to address their grievances" this time, and "we intend to minimize that effect."

About 200 churchmen and lawyers are being assigned to shifts and stations in the operation, centered in a mid-town Manhattan rail and subway juncture through which nearly a million people move daily, even in normal conditions.

"We recognize the police have a massive job on their hands, and I think we've worked out the best possible arrangements for the maximum rights for protest or voicing political opinion," Joyner says.

In preliminary discussion with police, he says, agreements have been reached on various steps to avoid conflicts.

We're always encountering the heredity versus environment controversy . . . even when we think about brothers. Is blood primarily responsible for the bond of comradery and affection pictured here?

Or did the influence of parents and the atmosphere of their home largely inspire this relationship?

History suggests the answer in man's religious growth: it was when he came to know God as his Father that he began to think of other men as his Brothers.

The beliefs that draw families to church on Sunday inspire the dimensions of brotherhood every day.

Water Levels Up At Parks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Water levels at three state parks have reached sufficient heights to support all types of water-oriented recreation, the Department of Natural Resources announced Thursday.

Lack of rain this spring caused lakes at Deer Creek and Buckeye Lake parks to drop below their normal depth. At Deer Creek Lake, southwest of Columbus, the water level had dropped about eight feet below its normal depth, according to a department spokesman. Recent rains brought the level of the lakes back to normal.

A third state park, Harrison Lake in Fulton County, is reported back to normal following repairs to a gate in the lake's dam. Harrison Lake was drained in September before the repairs.

New Carlisle Woman Wins Ohio Lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — New Carlisle elementary school teacher Pruda Barrett says she doesn't think her life will be changed by the $1,000-a-month for life she won in the Ohio lottery.

Mrs. Barrett said Thursday night after winning the top prize in the Buckeye 1,000 game—which guarantees her a minimum of $400,000—that she hadn't thought about what she would do with her winnings. "I'll have to go home and think about it," she said.

She said she enjoys reading and doing needlepoint and "taking extra college courses."

Mrs. Barrett's husband, Paul, a civilian employee for the Air Force, and a son, Paul Walker, were with her for the televised game in which she outlasted seven other contestants. She said she also has a daughter, Jane.

In the lottery's TV Extra game, Tony Scartz of Columbus won $20,000, and another Columbus resident, Helen Haire, won $5,000.

Kay Martin of Bellville won $10,000 in the TV Extra jackpot.

In the Buckeye 1,000 game, the second prize of $10,000 went to James Holbrook of New Richmond. Other winners included Juanita Snyder, Columbus, $7,500; William Tolliver, Cincinnati, $5,000; Mildred Prezioso, Painesville $4,000; Julius Telek, Rayland, $3,000; Marion Schwan, Fairborn, $2,000, and Edward Shelton, Toledo, $1,000.

Telek was represented at the drawing by his daughter-in-law, Rose Telek.

Ban the Leghold Trap We Are Almost There—Please Help

At this point — a single petition could mean success or defeat

“Of timid things, of tortured things, that take so long to die”.

The Ohio Committee for Humane Trapping (OCHT) and thousands of concerned Ohio citizens have worked hard to get this far. We need that extra help you can give NOW. Time is running out.

A recent poll commissioned by OCHT show an overwhelming 75% of Ohioans are against the cruel steel-jaw leghold trap. However — Ohio legislators are controlled by strong trapping and hunting lobbyists who have effectively crushed all previous legislation to ban this barbaric instrument of torture. Therefore — the OCHT is in the process of an initiative petition drive to take the issue away from our "lobby pressured" legislators and place it in the hands of Ohio voters.

For those who are not familiar with the Leghold Trap:

The steel-jaw, vise-like trap clamps shut with force on the leg or paw of any animal stepping into it. Sometimes the leg bone of the animal is broken. As the animal struggles to free itself, the jaws of the trap tear into the flesh, causing extreme pain and fear. The animal is held in the trap fully conscious until the trapper returns to bludgeon, stab or shoot it to death. The trapped animal is denied food and water and is exposed to all weather conditions. Often in a frenzy of fear and suffering the poor creature will chew off it's own leg to escape. Young children can and do purchase Leghold Traps — set them in the woods and then forget to revisit. These traps are not selective — they can and do catch our pet dogs and cats and wild birds.

PLEASE HELP If you are a registered voter, call immediately (as instructed below). Your petition and simple instructions will be mailed to you at once. (Only 37 signatures per petition). If you can partially fill one or fill several — you are needed. Your effort at this critical time can make the difference for Ohio's wildlife who face another year of torture by trappers using the cruel leghold trap. Signatures must be in no later than July 29th.

For Petitions please call any of the following numbers:

Believe it or not — And like it or not — With baseball just about halfway through the season — Pro football has arrived on the scene.

The College All-Stars will face the Pittsburgh Steelers in the annual All-Star clash with the Pros on July 23. It used to be played in August but it seems they are moving it up more each year — if it keeps moving in this direction — They will be punting Easter eggs instead of footballs before long.

The Pro training camps are getting set to open this weekend and pre-season games are set to begin as early as July 31.

We seem to be piling sports on top of each other and pretty soon we will be getting more action between the sports fighting for limelight than we will on the field of endeavor.

Maybe it is just us — But we don't think so — We look back to when baseball was the summer sport — Football moved into the picture in the fall — Basketball and hockey took center stage during the winter months — And golf and track had their time during those balmy spring days.

We have reached the point in sports that we have so many sports going at the same time that the athlete really doesn't know whether to run for a touchdown, hit the open man under the bucket, body check the man on center ice, swing at the hanging curve ball, hit a nine iron straight at the pin or take the hurdles in stride.

It just seems that money has become the name of the game — not Sports — So maybe they should just turn them all loose on the lawn at Fort Knox — Let them do their thing — And whoever survives gets the key to the vault.

Our "fearless" forecast — Being the Bicentennial year, we think it will be the year of the American in the All-Star Baseball Game.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Cincy, Philadelphia Dominate NL Reserves

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cincinnati's Big Red Machine and Philadelphia's powerpacked Phillies placed a combined 12 players on the National League All-Star team. Surprise — they're all hitters.

The Phillies, way out in front in the NL East, will have five players competing in front of their home fans at Veterans Stadium Tuesday night for the 47th All-Star Game. The Reds, leaders in the NL West, added two reserves to the five Cincinnati starters the fans had chosen earlier.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson Thursday picked 11 reserves, including four Phillies, to fill his NL roster to 28 players. The four Phillies were catcher Bob Boone, second baseman Dave Cash, shortstop Larry Bowa and third baseman Mike Schmidt. Earlier, the fans had selected Philadelphia outfielder Greg Luzinski as an All-Star starter.

Anderson also named two of his own players, outfielder Ken Griffey and first baseman Tony Perez. With the fans' previous selections of Cincinnati's three other infielders, second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion and third baseman Pete Rose, the NL could field an all-Cincinnati infield sometime in the game. The fans also named Cincinnati outfielder George Foster to the starting lineup.

The other reserves chosen by Anderson were third baseman Ron Cey and shortstop Bill Russell of Los Angeles, catcher Steve Swisher of the Chicago Cubs and outfielders Cesar Cedeno of Houston, Al Oliver of Pittsburgh and Bake McBride of St. Louis.

Anderson agreed with the fans' overall balloting, choosing the runners-up in the voting at each position. At shortstop, Bowa, the second choice, and Russell, the third pick, were both named to the squad. Boone was the second leading vote-getter at catcher, while Swisher, the Cubs' mandatory one representative on the squad, was the seventh choice in the fans' balloting.

In the outfield voting, McBride, hitting .342, and Griffey, batting .334, were the top runners-up. Oliver finished ninth in the balloting but leads the major leagues in hitting with a .363 average. Anderson passed over Lou Brock of St. Louis, Rick Monday of Chicago and Garry Maddox of Philadelphia to get to Oliver, the one Pittsburgh representative on the team.

Anderson didn't name any Cincinnati or Philadelphia pitchers for his eight-man pitching staff. The NL pitchers selected were Randy Jones of San Diego, who won his 16th game Thursday, Tom Seaver and Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Rick Rhoden of Los Angeles, Woodie Fryman of Montreal, John Montefusco of San Francisco, Ken Forsch of Houston and Andy Messersmith of Atlanta. Because of an injury, Messersmith was replaced by Dick Ruthven of Atlanta.

The NL starters will be Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, first baseman Steve Garvey of Los Angeles, Morgan, Concepcion, Rose, outfielders Foster, Luzinski and Dave Kingman of the Mets.

As one of the answers to "what can I do" that always comes along about this time of summer vacation the Westfall High School varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders will conduct a cheerleading clinic for girls sixth grade and below in the Westfall School District.

The clinic will be held on July 17 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. at Westfall High School.

It is mandatory that each girl attending have a written note from a parent stating permission is given to participate.

Each one should also bring a sack lunch. Beverage will be furnished.

There will be a $1.50 registration fee payable at the door. Any further questions should be directed to either of the cheerleaders who are Elaine Steinhauer, Crystal Metzger, Judy Wolford, Tina Stillings, Anita Neff or Tish Everman, varisty; Sandra Drummond, Tina Galloway, Kathy Evans, Sonya Schillings, Sherri Rivers, or Sherry Mullins, junior varsity.

It is just a bit strange trying to get back into harness after a couple of weeks of no routine to follow but the will o' the wisp. We had a terrific trip (and I am referring to the vacation type not the hip set kind). By we I mean Mary Alice Greenwood, Amy Easterday and myself.

Everything went quite smoothly with the exception of two or three thrillers such as getting somewhat lost in a cave, being in the down path of a tornado and having Amy dash up to a black bear in the Smoky Mountains. The frightening tornado experience took place in Georgia.

Earlier in the journey we had been on the fringes of one at Tampa Bay and in the Sarasota, Fla. area. We thoroughly enjoyed touring Rock City at Chattanooga, Busch Gardens at Tampa, Disney World and Sea World at Orlando, swimming in the Gulf of Mexico (which we thought so much prettier than the Atlantic Ocean) and all the gorgeous scenery of the Smokies.

And number one on the list of enjoyments was visiting with Grandma Phoebe Smiley and Ruth "Sweetpea" Shippe in their home at Macon, Ga. We were delighted to find that both are feeling fairly well although there are days when neither are sure where their get up got up and went. But at 102 and 80 respectively they are marvelous.

We spent time with them going south and on the return north we again visited. On our first stop we had the pleasure of seeing Vida Smiley, her daughter Martha and Martha's husband Len all from the Dayton area who were visiting in Macon for a couple of days.

We took a number of little side trips into places of interest and one of the things that impressed us greatly was how "all out" the smaller towns decorated for the bicentennial and Fourth of July. I must say they surely exhibited a great deal of love and pride of country. It was truly beautiful.

Where will our next venture take us? Who knows but we are in the talking stage! And my good doctor (the real McCoy) could hardly believe I lost nine pounds plus kept all my other problems stabilized. M.A. dropped a little weight, too. Soooo, the moral to it all has to be -- send those gals on the road again.

We arrived back home just in time to hear the happy news from a delighted first time grandmother Juanita (Mrs. Jack) Hanson that Shauna Marie Withers made her debut into this world at 12:58 p.m. July 5 at Fayette Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H. Tipping the scales at 10 pounds even, she was eagerly welcomed by parents Rick and Christy Hanson Withers who reside at 565 E. Franklin St. Paternal grandfather is Ralph Withers. Shauna Marie's maternal grandfather and paternal grandmother are both deceased.

Ever so often Sylvia Wilkey tosses a family "bash" in honor of birthdays and anniversaries being celebrated and so it was recently when J.F. and Vicki Picklesimer, Floyd and Betty Cox, Butch and Mindy Bivens had anniversaries, Mindy Bivens, Floyd Cox, Betty Cox, J.F. Picklesimer and Nola Trego had birthdays.

Others present for the festive day besides the honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Brady and Nikki Jo of Circleville, Brandy Jo Bivens, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cupp of Five Points, Jason Picklesimer, Norma (Mrs. Jim) Gochenour and Kelly Picklesimer of our town.

As I always like to point out whenever the opportunity presents itself Sylvia is the beginning of a five generation chain on not one but two ways -- Sylvia, Betty Cox, Rosie Brady, J.F. Picklesimer, Jason Picklesimer; also Sylvia, Betty, Rosie, Mindy Bivens, Brandy Jo Bivens. Neat-O, Huh?

Joe Angles was pleasantly surprised on his 20th natal date week ago Sunday when his lady love Connie Drummond planned a cook out. Conspirators to the plan were Ben and Mary Angles, Gary and Debbie Angles, Tom Adams, David, Marabel, Sandy and Joy Drummond. Later evening guests were Lori Hulse and Chuck Bower.

Keep up the good work of sending cheer cards and this time we ask that they be sent to Kate Russell, a patient at Grant Hospital in Columbus.

I have a tasty chicken recipe for you to try this week. Brown frying chicken pieces in small amount of shortening (do not flour or season); drain off all grease after well browned; pour one 5 ounce bottle 57 steak sauce in small mixing bowl and add equal amount of water. Pour over browned chicken and simmer until meat is tender. According to size of chicken pieces more sauce and water may be needed or even just more water can be used to stretch the sauce. The quoted amount will "do" two small chickens. Perfection salad goes well with this.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing (or unless I have found somewhere to go galavanting). Take care.

Frustrated Golfers Vie At Birkdale

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Although no longer a surprise, the world's best golfers are finding that strange things can happen when they hit a golf ball in Britain.

The type of golf being seen at Royal Birkdale in the 105th British Open this week is not the kind seen in the United States.

The thick, bushy rough that guards every fairway, the deep bunkers, the weird bounces off humpy terrain and the unpredictable breezes make every swing an adventure. Nothing is routine.

It has provided quite a bit of devilish entertainment for record crowds of British fans...and a fairway full of frustration for the golfers.

Only Severiano Ballesteros, a 19-year-old Spaniard, who is one of the top players in Europe, managed to escape most of the pitfalls with a second 69 Thursday for a 138 total and a two-stroke lead over American Johnny Miller after two rounds. Ballesteros did it by hitting the ball to the center of the fairways, then directly to the green.

Just seven other golfers managed to break the two-round par of 144 on the 7,001-yard course that softened to lower scores slightly on the second day as the field of 155 was cut to 82 with a score of 152 the cutoff.

American Hubie Green managed a 142 and Ray Floyd, another American, with a 67, was in at 143. But Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Jerry Pate and Tom Kite could only match par 144. Tom Weiskopf had a 145, Hale Irwin 146 and Arnold Palmer and Tom Watson 147. Carl Higgins, a little-known assistant club pro from Dallas, also had a 67 for 144.

Cleveland Browns Open Training Camp

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns opened their annual preseason training camp Thursday, placing on display for all to see the "glamorous" life of the pro football player.

The Browns, one of the least successful teams in the National Football League last season with a 3-11 record, have been forewarned by second-year Coach Forrest Gregg what to expect. Gregg, who played for the Green Bay Packers under the late taskmaster Vince Lombardi, is a believer in trying to outlast other teams physically.

So, the Cleveland training camp at Kent State University is a spartan place.

Jones, San Diego Top Cubs, 6-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Randy Jones has the drop on National League batters.

"His sinker falls four to eight inches," says San Diego pitching coach Roger Craig. "It's unlike anyone's I've ever seen in baseball."

Jones' bag of pitching tricks is so complete that even his sinkers have different character. Usually, all you do is wind up beating the ball into the dirt — which is what the Cubs did against the ultra-successful San Diego left-hander Thursday while losing 6-3.

Jones' sinker ball was in such rare form against the Cubs that the Padres

Syracuse Chiefs Top Toledo Mud Hens, 5-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Steimaszek slammed a two-run homer and a double Thursday evening to lead the Syracuse Chiefs to a 5-1 International League baseball victory over the Toledo Mud Hens.

Domingo Ramos drove in another two runs for the Chiefs in the seventh inning with a single. John Seliicki went the seven innings, allowing just four hits. Ron Guidry hurled the final two innings to preserve Seliicki's first victory of the year.

In other IL action Thursday, Rochester defeated Rhode Island 2-1; Charleston topped Tidewater 3-1; and Richmond downed Memphis 4-2.

Kawartha Eagle Wins Scioto Downs Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Kawartha Eagle led all the way Thursday night in winning the featured eighth race at Scioto Downs harness track, covering the mile in 2:01.1 and returning his backers $3.00, $2.60, and $2.40.

Able Cain paid $5.60 and $4.20 to place, while Rorty Hanover was worth $9.80 to show.

only made five outfield putouts all day.

Not incidentally, San Diego's breadwinner captured his 16th victory of the season — a National League record before All-Star competition. He thinks the accomplishment has earned him a start in the inter-league competition next Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

"I think 16 wins is enough work for half a season," Jones said after fashioning his seventh hit against the Cubs. "Now I'd like to start the All-Star game."

In the other National League games Thursday night, the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2 and the Houston Astros tripped the Montreal Expos 7-6. In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles outscored the Oakland A's 9-6; the Boston Red Sox turned back the Minnesota Twins 8-4; the New York Yankees blanked the Chicago White Sox 6-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 5-4 in 13 innings.

Thursday's victory was the fourth straight for Jones and the 11th in his last 12 decisions. He struck out six batters and walked two. He was aided by two balks and one wild pitch by Chicago pitchers, who contributed to two San Diego runs.

The Padres, snapping a three-game losing streak, jumped on Chicago starter Bill Bonham, 6-7, in the third inning, clustering five singles for four runs and ending a scoreless string by Chicago pitchers at 31 innings.

Mets 5, Braves 2

Wayne Garrett ripped a two-run single, capping a four-run fifth inning rally as New York downed Atlanta behind Tom Seaver's six-hitter. Seaver and Atlanta rookie right-hander Frank LaCorte were locked in a scoreless duel after four innings before the Mets exploded, aided by LaCorte's costly throwing error.

Astros 7, Expos 6

Jose Cruz' bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning brought home Enos Cabell with the winning run as Houston edged Montreal. Cruz' hit followed a single by Cabell and intentional walks to Bob Watson and Leon Roberts.

Orioles 9, A's 6

Ken Singleton drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and a sacrifice fly as Baltimore defeated Oakland. Wayne Garland won his 10th game against only one loss, although he needed relief help from Dyer Miller in the seventh inning.

Red Sox 8, Twins 4

Carl Yastrzemski drove in three runs with his 15th homer and a single and Carlton Fisk broke out of a slump with three hits, powering Boston over Minnesota. Yastrzemski singled across a run in the first and then belted a two-run homer into the Boston bullpen in the third. Yastrzemski hit only 14 homers all last season.

Yankees 6, White Sox 0

A three-run homer by Roy White backed the seven-hit pitching of Ken Holtzman and gave New York its victory over Chicago. The victory was the second for Holtzman since he was acquired from Baltimore, raising his season's record to 7-6 and giving the Yankees their seventh straight victory over Chicago. White Sox starter Rich Gossage, 5-7, took the defeat.

Brewers 5, Rangers 4

Gorman Thomas' two-run double capped a three-run 13th inning rally, lifting Milwaukee over Texas. After the Rangers had taken a 4-2 lead in the top of the 13th on a pinch-hit RBI single by Gene Clines and Jim Sundberg's squeeze bunt, the Brewers won it in their half of the inning on an RBI bunt single by Bill Sharp and Thomas' hit over left fielder Tom Grieve's head.

Ethics Commission Studies Expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Ethics Commission will consider at its monthly meeting in July a proposal to bring more "heavy" state agencies under financial disclosure requirements.

Jerome Bahlmann, the commission's executive secretary, said the agency might want to require members of the public utilities commission, board of tax appeals and "some of the other heavy agencies" to comply with the law.

Under the existing statute, which requires all elected officials to disclose sources of income but not the amounts, the legislature also included executive heads of agencies who are in policy or decision making positions.

The envisioned expansion would say that all members of state boards and commissions, named by the governor and subject to confirmation by the Senate, also would have to submit the annual financial reports.

Bahlmann wanted the expansion included in a 1976 revision of the ethics law, and it was a provision of that legislation until it was deleted by a Senate-House conference committee.

However the executive secretary said it was the intent of the legislature that the commission should expand the coverage by means of a rules change, rather than giving it the force of law, if it saw fit.

E.W. Lampson of Jefferson, a former state representative and commission member, said he favors that more flexible approach because rules can be revised and changed as needed, while a statute cannot be repealed except by the enactment of another statute.

Bahlmann and others contend members of the utilities commission and tax appeals board, among others, seem to fit into the same rationale that caused the state to require elected officials to provide information that could point up possible conflicts of interest.

The utilities commission decides rate applications for utilities while the tax board, with its quasijudicial authority, makes sweeping decisions that affect corporate and individual tax bills.

The five member ethics panel, if it wants to adopt the new rule, would proceed under the administrative procedures statute which requires public hearings advertised in advance for affected parties to express support or opposition.

ROTARY SPEAKER — Al Berger, right, introduced Municipal Court Judge O. Charles Hosterman Thursday to the Rotary Club. Hosterman explained the function of his court and also told Rotarians about the crowded conditions under which he and his staff must work. He stressed that there is an increasing need for a city-county complex to house the courts. In regular Rotary news, Bob Porter showed a banner he brought back from Athens, Greece during a recent trip he and his wife took with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brackett, former Circleville residents. Bill Richards introduced an exchange student from Finland. He described his native country and expressed his appreciation for the opportunity to participate in the exchange program.

On Books And Activities At The Library

It made our hearts sing this week when one of our faithful patrons brought a visiting exchange student from Australia to visit our library. She pointed out that she felt the Pickaway County District Public Library was one of the outstanding features of the area. If you haven't discovered the world of books on your doorstep, make a promise to do so soon.

If you don't mind your blood turning to gelatin, "The Fury" by John Farris is the book for you! Slated to become a major motion picture, it's a chilling tale of psychic twins with horrifying powers which threaten all of humanity.

For those who prefer a gentle love story, "The Distant Summer" by Sarah Patterson should do nicely. It's a tender story about a young girl's fragile relationship with an RAF pilot set in WW II England.

"The Cavanaugh Quest" by Thomas Gifford is a gripping tale of intrigue. A reporter's refusal to accept a man's death as suicide opens a Pandora's box of crime.

A zany bunch of characters with a Plan to become multi-multi-millionaires gives "The Great Pebble Affair" its story. This first novel by Brit Shelby entertains the reader with its comic inventiveness.

Science fiction aficionados have two new titles. "The Hand Of Oberon" by Roger Zelazny is the fourth volume in the Amber saga.

F. Paul Wilson writes of an alien organism and an all-out assault on mankind. "Healer" is the only thing in the way of the assault.

Mysteries come in a variety of styles. "King And Joker" by Peter Dickinson is set in contemporary England and involves the Royal family. In this case, however, the Royal family bears no resemblance to the real British family.

Murder mixes with muscles in the newest Max Roper mystery. "The Body Beautiful Murder" by Ken Platt investigates the demise of a Mr. Universe contender.

Romance suspense is the theme of "The Jaubert Ring" by Willo D. Roberts. A young girl and a mysterious ring are caught up in a fine suspense tale.

"Forever Wilt Thou Die" by Barbara Byfield combines murder with a party and comes up with a chilling piece of revenge.

If you prefer your mystery in short doses, "The Fallen Curtain" by Ruth Rendell is a collection of 11 mystery stories by the award-winning writer.

New books on health are becoming more popular as people strive to broaden their knowledge. Latest titles include: "Understanding Arthritis and Rheumatism" by Malcolm Jayson;

"How To Live With Your Heart" by Arthur Vineberg; "Diabetes" by Lowenstein and Preger; High Blood Pressure" by Finnerty and Linder.

For a better understanding of the role women have played in America, two new titles are very informative. "Enterprising Women" by Caroline Bird takes a look at women, past and present, in the economic history of the U.S.

"Womanhood In America" by Mary Ryan traces the American woman from Colonial times to the present.

"Marigold Mornings" by Dorothy Evislin is one woman's affirmation of the value of preserving the traditional role of woman. It's a family love story.

Mark Hatfield, Senator from Oregon, tells what it's like to be involved in situations contrary to your personal beliefs. "Between A Rock And A Hard Place" is a revealing document.

"The Wild Boy Of Aveyron" by Harlan Lane is a fascinating account of a wild boy of nature and a young French doctor who shaped the modern education of retarded and deaf children.

"Woody Hayes And The 100 Yard War" by Jerry Brondfield is an inside look at college football's most controversial coach.

Peter Drucker discusses changes which he feels should be made in pension funds and tax systems in "The Unseen Revolution."

"Concorde" by Geoffrey Knight is the inside story of the controversial aircraft.

Two great American pastimes are subjects of new books. "The Western" by Allen Eyles is a complete guide to that popular movie form.

"I Hear America Singing" by Hazel Arnett is a collection of great folk songs from Revolution to Rock.

There's always something new at the Library. Make it a habit to check the shelves frequently for good reading!

Logan Elm Board Holds Annual Budget Hearing

The Logan Elm Board of Education held its regular July board meeting and annual budget hearing Thursday night and adopted a budget for 1977 in the total amount of $1,923,960.56. In other action regarding finances, the board voted to borrow $125,000 to meet the monthly bills and payroll.

Several recommendations were made by local superintendent John Henn and approved by the board. The following teachers were approved for re-employment: Jane Eberhart and Kathy McQuire, Title I teachers; Pat Humphrey, elementary teacher; Debbie Krooks, high school special education.

The following new teachers were employed for the 1976-77 school year: Steve Richey, elementary, graduate of Mt. Vernon Nazarene College, beginning teacher; Dan Cooper, special education at Laurelville, graduate of Morehead State University, no experience; George Bouldin, English, graduate of Ohio State University, five years training and two years experience; Jeannette Carroll, English, bachelor of arts degree from Ohio University and no experience; Jacqueline Seimer, English, bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University and no experience; Susan Smith, elementary art, bachelor of science degree and no experience.

Bouldin was offered a supplemental contract to be head track coach.

Resignations were accepted during the meeting from Hazel Williams, secretary to the superintendent; Nick Damopolous, English instructor; Carolyn Rhoades, English instructor and Karen Wilson, elementary art teacher.

The board also approved the superintendent's recommendation to make Barbara Sudduth head of the English department.

Lee Wood Rhymer was employed as a full-time bus driver and Gary Jenkins was offered supplemental contracts to coach seventh and eighth grade football, reserve basketball and to be assistant track coach. The board also employed Richard Halley to do summer painting and maintenance.

With the placements completed at Thursday's meeting, the district has one vacancy remaining, high school science. Henn said this morning that the person he considers for that position will also have to be an assistant football coach.

Also on the agenda for the evening was a report from Opal Sims, curriculum coordinator. She talked to the board about the class size of the first and second grades at Washington and Pickaway Schools. The board adopted a policy to send new first and second grade students in the Logan Elm Village area to either Washington or Pickaway School, depending upon the physical facilities available at each building.

As project coordinator for the teacher self-evaluation project, Mrs. Sims reported that the project had received and adaptation grant in the amount of $12,262. She explained the pilot project objectives and told the board that the program would help to upgrade the instructional technique of the teachers.

Dow West, high school principal and Title IX coordinator, presented information on the high school scheduling and informed the board that the requirement for Title IX compliance has been completed.

The board approved the completion of the window replacement program at Saltcreek School. Final approval was also given for the Title I program for the 1976-77 school year.

Reports were given to the board on the work being done on the parking lot at Washington School and the roadway at the high school.

The next regular meeting of the Logan Elm Board will be Aug. 9 at 8 p.m. at the district office in the McDowell Building.

Board members are Don Bower, Virginia Wood, Roger Hobbie, Frank Seimer and Robert Bowers.

City Board Adopts 1977 Budget; Recommends Decrease In Millage

In regular session Thursday night, the Circleville Board of Education reviewed and adopted the 1977 budget in the amount of $3,335,799. The budget will now be presented to the county budget commission to which agency the board of education is recommending a reduction of .4 mills in bond retirement. If the recommendation is favored by the budget commission, the bond retirement tax rate will decrease from 2.9 mills to 2.5 mills.

Superintendent Fritz Jacobs advised the board that the school district would lose money on personal property taxes in the reappraisal but could stand to gain some in real estate taxes.

A communication was read to the board by John Farthing from State Senator Oakley Collins. Collins responded to the board's request that he veto against Senate Bill 208. He said he had voted against the measure but it had passed anyway. Farthing then noted that he had written to the governor and requested he veto the bill. The governor has vetoed it and the board felt there was little likelihood of a legislative override.

The board acknowledged its appreciation of Dave Horn's service to the school district and instructed the clerk to send a note of condolences to his family from the board members.

Resignations were accepted from the following teachers: Linda Bis and Phillip Burson, who were employed at the June board meeting; Mary Hartung, special education at South Court Street Elementary; Lana Irvin, junior high English; David Angles, junior high physical education; Jim Funk, secondary special education.

Susan Miga was transferred from Corwin Street School to Mound Street School and submitted her resignation as head teacher at Corwin.

Jacobs presented his recommendations for five teachers, all with no experience. The board then went into executive session to discuss employment practices with regard to hiring inexperienced teachers instead of those with previous experience.

Upon returning from executive session, the board approved employment of the following new teachers: Teresa Troutman, elementary, bachelor of science degree from Ohio University; Deborah Marshall, elementary, bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University; Susan Gerken, high school English, bachelor of arts degree from Capital University; Bonnie Gwinn, elementary Title II, bachelor of science degree from OU; Richard Walters, junior high physical education, bachelor of science degree from Ashland College.

Walters was also employed to coach either freshman football or to be a varsity football assistant, junior high track and either junior high or varsity assistant track coach. The football and track jobs will depend on the recommendations from the head coaches in these two areas.

George Ankrom was employed on a temporary contract, from Aug. 1 through December, as a general maintenance man.

The superintendent noted that there were still vacancies in junior high English, junior high music, high school special education and elementary special education.

A policy on removal, suspension and expulsion, as required by Ohio Revised Code 3313.661, was presented and approved. Copies of the policy are to appear on the bulletin boards of each school and the policy will be written in the student handbook.

Six clubs were phased out of the high school activity account since they are no longer financially active. Remaining funds in each of the accounts were transferred to the general fund of the high school activity fund.

Hatfield Insurance Company was awarded the contract for the school bus and other vehicle insurance coverage for liability and comprehensive. The quotation was for $1,288.80. There were three other local companies submitting quotations.

Jacobs pointed out that new legislation now permits the board of education to have uninsured motorist coverage. The board's policy allows for that coverage in the amount of $100,000-$300,000 and medical payment from $2,000 to $3,000.

The trash hauling contract was awarded to Frazier's Refuse Haulers for $300 per month, the same price as last year. The milk contract was awarded to Blue Ribbon Dairy for 9½ cents for white milk and 10½ cents for chocolate per half pint. The dairy noted in its bid that the prices are subject to increase or decrease depending on the price paid for raw agricultural products.

Approval was given for the bus drivers who are interested to attend a seminar sponsored by the Metropolitan Education Council on Aug. 13 in Gahanna.

In other action, the board voted to increase the substitute teacher salary to $28 per day. After ten days in the same position, the substitute pay is $30 per day and the teacher begins on regular salary schedule beginning with the 31st day of consecutive teaching in the same position.

The personal leave policy was expanded to cover all non-certificated employees.

Four staff members were approved for attendance to professional meetings.

The board revised Elizabeth Wolford's classification from bachelor's degree status to five years training on the salary schedule.

Electrical work for the junior high renovation was contracted to United Electric for $643.

Robert Johnson and John Farthing were appointed delegate and alternate delegate to the Ohio School Board Association's Annual Business meeting on Nov. 8. Expenses for all board members who attend the meeting is covered.

Several transfers and investments completed the business presented by the superintendent.

Roger Wolfe, secondary supervisor, was assigned additional duties in transportation.

The board adjourned to meet in continued session at 7:30 a.m. on July 15 to consider filling the existing vacancies.

Circleville Board of Education members are Dr. Robert Liggett, Shirley Wylie, John Farthing, Robert Johnson and Forrest Brown.
